LIFE THROWS US CURVE BALLS.

ARE YOU PREPARED?

Twenty-one years ago, my parents got a divorce. While that seems like a pretty normal statistic, people affected by divorce know how terrible the experience is for a family. To put it bluntly: it sucks.

Like many women going through the process, my mom was quickly faced with tons of legal fees and left financially devastated. She worked two jobs to ensure that my brother and I were okay. Our family made extreme sacrifices to rebuild. This is not a new story for over 50% of the marriages that terminate each year. It is however, one of life's curve balls.

Their transition was hard on me and negatively impacted my behavior. My mom decided that the best therapy would be for me to attend "Camp Entrepreneur" at Seton Hall College in Pennsylvania during junior year of high school. I will forever be grateful for this experience! It fueled my entrepreneurial spirit, and I earned a certificate of achievement from the National Education Center for Women in Business. The lion was unleashed, and soon after, I started taking business classes at the local community college.

From there, I earned my degree in Business Economics at Penn State, and then had the pleasure of working for some of the best firms on Wall Street. I soaked up knowledge on how to understand the markets, built investment portfolios, received licenses and designations that provided me with the know-how to become a credible financial planner. All of this education gave me the tools to become financially independent and help my clients achieve their financial goals.

Today, I'm extremely proud to report that my mom has recently retired at the early age of 64. She has the highest credit score possible (honest to God!), ZERO debt, a paid-off house, and a sizeable nest egg to enjoy her golden years. I taught her to pay herself first, and save for the future. The best part: she listened.

That is why I started MEL Consulting Co. and created the exclusive 6-month comprehensive program, "Achieving Financial Independence for Women." I teach women how to take control of their money and incorporate the necessary life skills to stand on their own two feet.

I'd love to empower you to build a strong financial foundation and create wealth, while planning for life's curve balls. To schedule a conversation, visit: www.melconsultingco.com
